

On Campus

What's It Worth?

Some college memories are priceless; others end up on eBay. Check out a few of the Columbia collectibles that were recently put up for auction.

Spring/Summer 2018

An embroidered pillow that features a sampler of Columbia sites. $175

A 1967 issue of "Heights," a campus newspaper that the seller describes as being "suffused with a radical energy and a palpable distrust of the school's administration." $550

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

SEPTEMBER
1967 Vol. I No. 1
FRESHMEN
ORIENTATION
ISSUE

HEIGHTS

NEVER TRUST
A
GOD
OVER THIRTY

The Student Radical and the Campus Ministry

THE REV. HENRY W. MALCOLM

Some have said that the fall of 1967 marked the beginning of the change from the mild liberal to the more radical. It was the year of the Negro student, the year of the anti-war protest, the year of the Vietnam War, the year of the civil rights movement, the year of the student radical. Up to that point it seemed that the civil rights movement was all but completely limited to the actions of anti-Negroist, anti-segregationist and anti-communist to almost equal degrees. The organization known as CORE (Congress of

(Continued on page 2)

A cheerleading megaphone of the Old Blue, an amateur rugby club founded by Columbia alumni in the 1960s. $125

A medal for participation in Columbia's Division of War Research during World War II. $349.99

A beer stein with Columbia's seal on the lid. $400

A tobacco silk from 1910 honoring the track team. $32

COLUMBIA

MURAD CIGARETTES, FACTORY N° 7-3RD DIST. N.Y.

A felt pennant from the 1920s. $79.99

Specimens of yellow pond lily and convallaria root preserved by the Columbia College of Pharmacy in 1907. $55

Guide to school abbreviations

All categories >