On Campus

The 8 Most Romantic Places on the Columbia Campus

For couples who meet at Columbia, campus is an integral character in their love story. Here are eight spots that students and alumni have used as settings for marriage proposals.

Feb. 12, 2025

Straddling Amsterdam Avenue, Revson Plaza’s views make it the perfect place for a Columbia proposal — especially on Commencement Day.

From her throne on Low Library's steps, Alma Mater has witnessed countless courtships and engagements since 1903.

Is there anywhere more romantic than College Walk during the holiday season?

For surprise declarations outside Mathematics and Havemeyer Halls, Roar-ee is there to keep watch.

Buell Hall’s classrooms and chalkboards can be used for more than just lessons.

Why splurge on a visit to the Empire State Building when you can take advantage of the Vagelos Education Center’s stunning skyline views?

The sundial on College Walk is a perfect place for meetups — and marriage proposals.

For couples who met at Columbia Business School, the “Curl” sculpture outside Uris Hall has special romantic resonance.

Visit the Alumni Association's "Columbia Love Stories" collection for more campus romance tales.

Guide to school abbreviations

All categories >